

“Big 5” Sightings on Every Safari

Kalama Safaris

One hundred years ago, the “Big Five” were the most sought-after animals to hunt. They were the fiercest, the most dangerous animals; the animals that would hunt the hunter.

Explorers of East Africa went home with stories of lions and leopards in tall African grass, of rhinos that would charge at the mere smell of a person, of the Cape Buffalo hidden in the bushes, and the terrors of an enraged elephant.

Today, these are the animals that visitors most want to see while on safari and hunt with camera lenses. These big mammals are more interesting than the early explorers and hunters knew.
